MIRATHARALEM, N. C.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 30, 1879.

SALEM is now considered headquarters for the grain trade in the section embracing the counties of Stokes, Surry, Yadkin, Davie, Davidson and other counties. This trade has grown to such an extent, and the demand so constant, that no farmer need fear to bring his good surplus grain to this market. Although prices are low, yet the cash can always be obtained at any time at our two Mills, and our merchants will exchange their goods for country produce at cash prices.

This should stimulate our farmers to renewed exertions to grow more grain, even if the prices do not compare favorably with those of a few years ago. Our farmers should not complain so much but try to make up the deficiency in price by the quantity and quality of their produce grown. We could mention several farmers who always obtain higher prices for their farm produce than others, because they are careful to have it all clean and nice.

We hope to see the day when our farmers will vie with each other in improving their lands, stock, &c., and make this and neighboring counties the garden section of the State.

Seven Questions for the Legis-lature.

2. New York and other States have reduced taxation one-half in the last four years. Our taxation is higher as above stated. Why should this continue?

3. The Convention saved $90,000 by abolishing annual sessions of the Legislature, but the rate of taxation remains the same. Why should this be?

4. There is a deficiency of $100, 000 in the Treasury, and that much must be saved somehow before taxation can be even left where it is. Will the Legislature raise our taxes in these hard times?

THE CAPE FEAR & YADKIN VAL-LEY RAILROAD .- A bill has been introduced in the House by Dr. York asking for convicts to build a railroad up the valley of the Yadkin river to Patterson's factory in Caldwell county. This important measure claims the carnest and cordial support of the Legislature.

First, because the North Western ection of the State, embracing the counties of Forsyth, Surry, Yadkin, Alexander, Caldwell, Wilkes, Alleghany, Ashe and Watauga has received less State aid in proportion to its extent and the value of its resources, in developing its resources, than any section of the commonwealth.

Secondly, because no other sec-tion of the State of equal extent, can compare with this in the value and variety of agricultural and mineral productions which it would send to market if means of transportation were provided .- Ral. News.

We are pleased to notice that Northwestern North Carolina is beginning to attract public attention. We hope to see the rich resources of this section of country soon fully developed. Danville, Va., has an an eve to the important trade of this region, and we have strong hopes that better times are in store for this, only a few years ago, comparatively unknown section of country. Speed the day!

Important to Agriculturists. The following Card from Prof. Ledoux, the State Agricultural Chemist at Chapel Hill, is important to all farmers, and we presume they will take notice of its valuable suggestions:

The Public Lands and Education

Special to Richmond Dispatch 24th.] Washington, January 23. — The House took up the bill for distributing the proceeds of the public hands among the States and Territories for education al purposes. Mr. Goode, in explanation of the bill, said the first section set apart forever the proceeds of the public lands for the education of the people. The second section requires the Secretary of the Interior to take a net, account of the proceeds of the sales of public lands at the end of each fiscal year. The third section directs that the fund shall be distributed among the States and Territothe basis of population between the ages of five and twenty-one. For five years the whole fund is to be distributed, and after five years, and until the expiration of ten years, one half of the prece the lands is to be invested in 4 per cent. Government bonds, and the interest apted. For the first ten years the distribu tion is to be in proportion to the number of persons over ten years old who are unable to read and write, The fourth soction provides that before a State or Territory receives its share of the fund it must file an act of its Legislature previously passed setting it apart forever for educational purposes, as required by the provisions of the bill. The committee had amended this section so as to de-vote one-fourth of the fund to the agricultural colleges. The fifth section provides that if any State misapply its fund it shall forfeit its right to any further share until the full amount is replaced.

Governor Vance feelingly returned his thanks to the caucus for the great product that his gratification was all the greater because this honor had been obtained without the bitterness and anxiety of a contest. He complimented his competitor for his patriotism in preferring the peace and harmony of the party to his personal aggrandizement. Dwelling upon the importance of preserving the organization of that great party which had in charge the Constitution and the liberties of the American people, he traced briefly its history, and what it had done for us since the Confederate cause went down behind the tempest of the skies in down behind the tempest of the skies in the State and the nation. He professed his devotion to it not from a subservient and slavish obedience, but because of the great interests it had in charge, and avered solemply that he never had an aspiration which he was willing to grat-ify at its expense. He prophesied that the night's proceeding would have a most happy effect upon the great cam-paign of 1880, and that if other States paign of 1880, and that if other States would imitate the example of subordination to party harmony which was here set the whole United States would soon be redeemed from Republican misrule. He predicted that we were on the avenue to restored prosperity, despite the harsh stringency of the times. We beheld the ancient laws restored, and our people happy and contented. He gave assurance that he had refrained from public defining the time to be between sunrise and sunset on Sunday. This issued for the N. C. R. R. Co., thirty and that he had refrained from public of private utterance that would add to the bitterness of a contest. He congratulated the General Assembly upon its presence here in the Capitol, and again expressed his heartfelt thanks for the great, great houor that was done him.

As we follow life's varied fancies Rejoicing in our youth, Do we make the old folks happy? Ito we heed their wants for sooth

Precious mother how she loved us!
And, sh! how she loves us still,
As she sits screnely smiling,
In her cap with its snowy frill.
And yet oftimes we forget her.
When younger hearts enthrall—
Let us make dear mother happy
Till she hears the angel's call.

And poor father, bent and broken,
Like a reed in the driving wind—
Let us steady his wavering footsteps
And bear with his childish mind.
He was once our pride and solace, In his strong days long ago
Let us make dear father happy
While he's spared to us below.

Let us make the old folks happy
Lest we too when growing old
Should look in vain to our children
For comforts we withhold.
While the light is flickering feebly In its dim uncertain glow, Let us make the old folks happy With love's sweet overflow.

HUMOROUS.

A Strange "Bed-Feller." During the late cold snap, one of our farmers chose a certain day to kill his hogs, which was to use his own lan guage, "a leetle too cold." The hogs froze on the pole as fast as they were hung up, and after all were killed the boys took several hot toddies, and the old man, who was already staggering, stumbled off into a back-room and was soon fast asleep in the wrong bed. About eight o'clock a neighbor who had been helping, concluded to go home, and as he went out stopped to examine the hogs on the pole, which he found as cold as stones. Taking one of the smallest down, he lugged it around the house to the back door, carried it into the old man's room and, throwing back the bed-clothes, laid it snugly up to the old man, spoon fashion, then covered them up and left. About 11 o'clock the old man awoke, and instantly yelled out, "Dave, Dave! Oh, Dave!" Dave was still busily engaged at euchre, in the other room, but answered, "What the devil do you want with me?"

listened attentively until they finished and then asked them if they would not like to see Mrs. Hayes. They assented, and the President asked Mrs. Hayes to show them the White House, which she did, taking the ladies to the nursery, kitchen, and through all the chambers, pointing out the improved methods of housekeeping and asking their opinions upon domestic subjects. The ladies expressed gratification at Mrs. Hayes' kindness, but carried off an impression that they had been trifled with. Information about housek eeping was not what they were after.

A friend of mine went recently to have a tooth stopped. The dentist advised him that he had better have the tooth taken out, and assured him that he would feel no pain if he took laughing gas,

What is the effect of the gas?" asked my friend.

"It simply makes you totally insensible," remarked the dentist; "don't know anything that takes place."

My friend submitted, but just previous to the gas being administered, he put his hand in his pocket and pulled out his money. "Oh, don't trouble about that now," said the dentist, thinking he was going to be paid his fee. "Not at all," said the patient, " I was simply going to see how much had before the gas took effect."

AGRICULTURAL

The Orchard in February. If one is to set out small fruits, whether for home use or market, the sconer the preliminary work of selecting the kinds, and ordering the plants is done, the better. The present is one of those periods, that every now and then occur in fruit culture. There are a number of new varieties of great promise, but that have not been sufficiently tested, to warrant planting them largely. The grower for market feels much like the hunter who wished to so aim at an ani-mal, that he would miss it if a calf, but hit it if a deer. The safe way for those who grow fruit for sale, is to plant out trial-beds of the promising kinds, and thus test their adaptability to the soil, and if the result is satisfactory, you is a distant one, the fruit whatever other quality it may have, must be firm enough to reach its destination in good order. If there is a local or neighbor ed to and the materials got ready. In the family garden, the best support for raspberries is a single wire strained between posts at the ends of the rows. and we think that the best grape vine trellis, is that with horizontal slats 4 feet apart, with upright wires where needed. - American Agriculturist for February 1.

The Vegetable Garden in February.

Vegetable Plants .- Many, who have gardens, omit or neglect to provide a stock of cabbage, tomato, pepper, and other plants, depending upon some good-natured neighbor to supply them from his surplus. It is well to be neigh-"Come here quick with a light—run borly in such matters, but it is also well that those who neglect to provide themcold as h—ll."—Owensboro (Ky) Messelves with such plants, should pay those who are at the trouble of raising The President's Joke.

President Hayes recently perpetrated a rich joke on the ladies of the Woman Suffrage convention. They called on him and presented a resolution adopted at the convention, following up with an argument in their favor. The President listened attentively until they included the solution and proceed but a small number will buy in lack was cured; and for nine months I need but a small number will buy in back was cured; and for nine preference to raising them. vious fall. In the absence of these, the next best are properly treated hot-bed plants, and if these are well managed, they are almost as good as those that have been wintered in cold frames. Of course to get the plants early, there must be hot-beds.

What to Sow.—Cabbages, Cauliflowers

and Lettuce are the earliest to be set in the open ground, and should be sown first. Tomatoes and other plants from warm climates may be sown two weeks later. As an early cabbage, nothing has yet superseded the true "Jersey Wakefield." Some prefer the "Early York," but that is too small for market. "Henderson's Early Summer" is the earliest hard cabbage. For second early, and for general use everywhere, nothing surpasses the "Winning-stadt." Among Cauliflowers, the "Early Erfurt" is the most generally sown, and there are new kinds offered. In Lettuces, the best heading kinds are "Tehnis-Ball," " Boston Market," and "Butter;" "Early Simpson" is showy, early, does not head,-American Agriculturist for February 1.

Tree Planting.

A mistake frequently made in transplanting trees is to bury them too deep. Burying the roots and collar of a tree beneath the surface of the soil cannot fail to be attended with unfavorable results, and the practice should be carefully avoided. The amateur or novice in planting may ask what guide is there to show the right depth at which a tree his hand ornamented with a variety of should be planted, or what there is to mixed colors which his inquisitiveness indicate it. We will point out a simple At Hardware Storeguittellu bia

"Why, what have you been doing, my child," said mamma, "to get your hands in such a state?"

"That's a secret," said Arthur.
"You must tell me how you got your hands so soiled."

"I can't tell you, mamma,—it's a secret."

"I can't tell you, mamma,—it's a coret."

"That's a secret," said Arthur.
"You must tell me how you got your tree what is technically called the collar or neck. Now when a tree is planted and finiahed off, thus neck or collar should be just even with the surface of the soils not buried bepared by face of the soils not buried beneath In fact, it is better, if anything, to err the other way, and have it a little above the surface. This light eleration would, in the first instance, be rather an advantage: in the case of newly made or deeply trenched ground, where the tree does not rest on a firm bottom, allowance should be made for the sinking as the soil gets firm and selid.—American Cultivator.

A New Orleans paper congratulates the people of that city on the abolition of the detective force. "Now," it says, "burglars are captured within a few hours after the offence transpired."

No wonder the Celestials have a good or of themselves. How can a Chipe man be made of common clay?

BARN-YARD MANURE must remain for many years, at least, the back-bone of profitable farming, hence it should be guarded with special care. Manures should invariably be under cover, and in the absence of proper shelter, they should be protected by a thick coat of dry earth, road scrapings, or sods and mold. Do not permit your most valuable aid to increased profits to blow off with every wind, or wash away with every rain.

Mr. H. R. STEVENS.

Dear Sir,—About ten years ago my health failed through the depleting effects of dyspepsia; nearly a year later I was attacked by typhoid-fever in its worst form. It settled in my back, and took the form of a large, deep-seated abscess, which was fifteen months in gathering. I had two surgical operations by the best skill in the state, but received no permanent cure. I suffered great pain at times, and was constantly weakened by a profuse discharge. I also weakened by a profuse discharge. I also lost small pieces of bone at different times Matters ran on thus about seven years till May, 1874, when a friend recommended me to go to your office, and talk with you of the virtue of VEGETINE.
